CONTROLLED QUALITY VEAL

Our partners in Holland raise the most succulent veal using a 150 days milk fed feeding program. As the veal calfs consume only milk, not grass or grain, the meat retains a wonderful light pink colour and remains juice and extremely tender, which results with exceptional taste.

In about 1600, in the Namur region, it was the custom of country people to fry fish caught in the River Meuse. When winter came and the river froze over, this was replaced by potatoes cut into slim batons. French fries had been invented...

Belgium is now among the countries with the highest yield per hectare when it comes to potato growing (Western Europe cluster) and it supplies finished products of a rare quality. Yet Belgium has much else to recommend it.
